Senator Mitt Romney (R-Utah) finds the phrase "America First" laughable. In an interview with MSNBC's Stephanie Ruhle, Romney expressed his strong dislike of populism and his support of the interventionist approach to foreign policy embraced by American political elites since World War 2:

"Many in our party have followed that populist streak, which is, 'Hey, stop worrying about the rest of the world, just worry about what's going on here.' What they're forgetting is that we are connected to the rest of the world, that our economy is connected to the rest of the world. That if we had had that attitude then, you know, Germany would've ended up ruling the world, all right."

After adding that he "laugh[s] at the phrase 'America First,'" he accused America Firsters of isolationism, and predicted that such a posture would allow Putin to march unimpeded across Europe, and China to continue her own rise to hegemonic status. "How about a world where China and Russia control the world and we have our own little island? That's not a world where Americans are going to be safe or prosperous," Romney told Ruhle. "We're safe and prosperous when the world follows the orders that have existed over the last 75 years."

Elsewhere in the interview, Romney was careful to differentiate between what voters want, and what politicians ought to be delivering:

“I would note ... that a lot of politicians spend their time talking about things that sound good to the folks back home, but have no impact on the future of the country.... But the big things that we ought to be dealing with: One, the amount of debt we have — it’s getting to be a problem, all right? Number two, the emergence of China as a great power, if not THE great power. Three, the climate. We talk about things that make us feel good about ourselves, but won’t actually deal with the climate. And the big one: artificial intelligence. AI is changing the world. It’s as big a disruptor as nuclear power was.”

Romney also called for a return to bipartisanship (Code word for working with Democrats to do the bidding of the World Economic Forum):

“There are a lot of people who don’t want anything to become law.... I know it’s nice to go back home and fire up the base and get everybody to say, “he’s a real fighter,” but if that fighter is not willing to actually work with people across the aisle, that fighter’s not gonna get anything done. And there are too many people today who don’t recognize we need to do some things right now.”

Voter sentiment, however, seems to have diverged sharply from the old bipartisan “business as usual” m.o. Romney’s impending retirement would appear to be at least a tacit acknowledgement of this.

What can YOU do about this?

Get educated and get active in your community!

Use these guiding principles to form your team:

We believe the American system of government, a constitutional Republic, is the finest ever developed by man.

We believe the traditional moral values of our Judeo-Christian heritage form the cornerstone of western civilization and that the family is the most vital unit of society.

We believe the free market system, competitive capitalism, and private enterprise afford the widest opportunity and highest standard of living for all.

We believe in the dignity of the individual. We welcome people from all ethnic racial and religious backgrounds judging others only by character and ability - as we wish to be judged ourselves - our common bond is a love for liberty and our rejection of totalitarianism under any label.

We believe that individual rights are endowed by our creator, not government; that the government's function should be limited to protecting our right to life, liberty, and property; and that individual rights are inseparably linked to individual responsibility.

If you agree with the above concepts, you are a “Bircher” so let’s get organized in local chapters of the John Birch Society to start impacting your community. In this way we can still work as an organized team statewide without concern of interference from the political thugs that set out to lynch Kristina.
